

Maritime Fuel Management

This is a course created to inform and educate engineers on the new low-sulfur fuel requirements that include bunkering procedures, sampling, and testing, fuel change over procedures, local and international regulations, fuel mixing, and ECA. This is designed to provide technical, operational, and administrative aspects of marine fuel on mitigating commercial and environmental risks on ship operations.